

Ronald Seeliger, Second Vice President

Since 2012 Dr. Ronald Seeliger is the CEO of Hemofarm Group, a leading player in the pharmaceutical industry in Serbia and one of the biggest players in the Western Balkans, also covering North Africa and Middle East.

International experience in numerous companies world-wide and in management positions where he achieved significant results qualified him for the leading position in the Hemofarm Group overseeing 3,100 people. A special management challenge lies in the fact that the company manufactures and operates in factories, business centres, even in a laboratory, all located in several states of the Balkans region. His key business task, as the head of Hemofarm Group, is to improve not only the company's performance and portfolio, but also the position of the Serbian subsidiary of the STADA Group in the Serbian, regional and global pharmaceutical market.

Dr. Seeliger graduated from the Technical University in Berlin and earned his PhD degree for the thesis 'Process-Oriented Controlling for Media Companies'. He built his career in business as a part of the management of large industrial systems in Europe, Australia and Asia. Dr. Seeliger was also the Director of Controlling in Formula 1.
